8. Communication Procedure. 1. The Fire Department is pages out by the 911 dispatcher for calls when an incident is "called in" to Door County 911. The dispatcher then pages Ephraim Fire Department on the County fire radio network. Simultaneously, an ambulance crew (EMS), normally out of Sister Bay is also dispatched. Ephraim Fire Department acknowledges the page and starts its typical response procedures. When a call is received by telephone the dispatcher has some information available up front to help determine what needs an incident may require. Dispatchers only pass information to the responding agency. From that point forward, it is up to the incident commander at the Ephraim Fire Department as to what level of response to take, using as guidelines current protocol methods of the U.S. Coast Guard.
2. An officer of the Fire Department or paramedic, road deputy or first responder may notice or be informed of an incident second hand and radio the information in on the county radio network. He or she may relay known facts about the incident to the 911 dispatcher so the information may be directed to the correct responding agency.

Yacht Harbor/Club, South Shore Pier, Ephraim Harbormasters, other marinas and other vessels.

10. Community Involvement. The Fire Chief or his designate shall have the responsibility to communicating with community groups and businesses to advise them how they may participate in the water rescue program if they choose. Any one of the groups or businesses may become aware of an incident on Eagle Harbor and it is imperative that they activate 911. It is understood that these groups may have valuable resources such as personnel, boats and equipment that could aid in the water rescue effort.
